County Chapter Sends $1,000 To National

In an unprecedented move to save the March of Dimes nationwide program providing for the necessary care of polio patients, the Crawford County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis today transferred $1,000.00 of its "surplus" funds to the national organization.

In announcing the payment John H. Peterson, chairman of the chapter, explained that the money was to be earmarked and pooled for redistribution among chapters of the National Foundation which are confronted with bills for patients care beyond the limits of their financial resources.

"We have made this payment," he said, "in compliance with a call issued by President Basil O'Connor of the National Foundation to all chapters with current surpluses beyond their estimated needs for this year."

"The nature of polio — unpredictable and geographically without pattern — has made it necessary for chapters to have a reserve fund for the year."

wide adjustment of March of Dimes resources necessary if the vital patient aid program is to survive," Mr. Peterson continued. "We of the Crawford County Chapter are proud to contribute toward the continuation of the program so essential to polio patients everywhere."

"Our own needs for the care of polio patients continue large, and the people of Crawford County will go on meeting them through contributions to the March of Dimes. While the promise of the Salk vaccine is bright, polio isn't licked yet. No one knows where this disease will strike next. Hence Crawford County's continued support of the March of Dimes is not only a contribution to the nation's fight against polio; it is the way our people have of insuring themselves."

Mr. Peterson cited a recent statement issued by the National Foundation which showed that the 1955 March of Dimes total for the country fell short by approximately $12,000,000 of meeting polio needs of this year. Through the call for surpluses to 1,791 chapters which are in the black, it is expected some $10,000,000 will be made available for 1,274 other chapters that are now in the red because of heavy inroads to help polio patients.

Course On Michigan Resources Begins At Roscommon

Dr. Richard L. Weaver, Associate Professor of Conservation and Education of the University of Michigan, showed the 25 teachers and school administrators enrolled in the course beginning last Friday at the Roscommon High School entitled "Conservation of Michigan Resources," how conservational can and should be made a part of the public school program.

The initial session at which Weaver spoke was the first of two registration periods. Others may register at the next class session scheduled at 6:30, September 23.
The course is administered by the University of Michigan Extension office at Traverse City, headed by Robert Brackett, Extension Supervisor. The course is sponsored by the School of Natural Resources at the University of Michigan with Weaver as course coordinator.

Weaver said that conservation so important in maintaining our standard of living now and in the future and to our survival as a nation that it should be taught in every classroom and in every school. He also pointed out that practically all of the important educational groups have undertaken programs to help bring this about, including the American Association of School Administrators. All teachers have a stake in it and can do something toward including it. The biology, agricultural, and social science teachers have unique opportunities and responsibilities to deal with the biological, economical, social, political and technological implications of conservation of our natural resources.

School administrators can assist by helping their teachers include more field trips, more audio-visual instruction, more references for research use, and more experimental and laboratory work in conservation.
Much can be accomplished by field study of community problems and resources, work with local, state, institutional, and industrial resource personnel, as well as through the establishment of nature laboratories, arboreta, school building, school camping programs, school forests and school gardens. Some schools are including special courses in conservation. In fact, 1500 were known to have been in operation last year in the nation, many of them in Michigan and Wisconsin.

"Conservation can best be taught outdoors and children often decide their life's work as the result of such real-life experiences," says Weaver. The teachers and administrators present were instructed to investigate the newly published book entitled "Handbook for Teaching Conservation and Resource-Use," published by the National Association of Biology Teachers on a $10,000 grant from the Pack Foundation which secured much of its resources from Michigan's white pine.
The book contains 200 descriptions how teachers all over United States have been teaching conservation. Dr. Weaver served as Project Leader to prepare the Handbook.

At the second session this Friday evening, Dean Emeritus Samuel T. Dana of the School of Natural Resources, with discuss Conservation, Policy and Administration. Dana has just completed a new text on this topic. He will be followed by Prof. Shirley A. Allen of the Michigan Conservation Commission who will cover Agricultural Resources and Soil Conservation. Allen has also just completed a conservation textbook being used by many universities and colleges throughout the country.

Other instructors for the course include Dr. G. Robinson Gregory, a resource economist; W. W.
Chase, Head of the Wildlife Department; Dr. Karl Lagler, Head of the Fisheries Department; Prof.
Stephen Preston, Head of the Wood Technology Department; Dr.
Robert Dils, formerly of Michigan State University and now at Ann Arbor; Dr. James O. Zumberge, of the Geology Department, and Prof. Lyle Crane, a new staff member in the Conservation Department of the University.

DENMARK IN HOLIDAY MAGAZINE

Holiday Magazine features Denmark in its September issue as one of the world's pleasant countries. Author William Samson describes the country as a blending of five hundred islands, giant pink horses, cigar-smoking giant steers, ships in the streets, blood-red cottages with green plush roofs, a sky line of bottles and a capital with a twenty-four-hour a-day night life.

Lying on a latitude with Labrador and a longitude almost as far east as Berlin, the article states. Denmark is not truly northern like Norway, but a bright and lively sea country freshened by winds from the sea.
Denmark, the article continues, is essentially a seafaring nation, and the Dane, with his large sense of humor, his imagination, his independence, yet his idea of cooperation, remains distinct.

The article tours the entire country, coming to rest in the Copenhagen, called the Paris of the North, with its ships and spires and palaces. It describes the Tivoli Gardens, the signs outside the shops, the decorated mailman, the gay, charming and pleasure-loving people who refuse to take themselves too seriously.

The mixture of the old and new, the article concludes, makes Denmark difficult to define and hard to encounter; a land of castles and old tanks, a royal democracy whose king sit one moment on the ritual throne and the next conducts the orchestra publicly in the pit of his Royal Theatre.

Urge Scouts' Dads To Attend Meetings

Scoutmasters George Schlabbe and Claude Halstead of the Grayling Troop urged the fathers of Scouts to attend the regular troop meeting along with their boys.

The troop meetings are held every Tuesday evening at 7 to 8:30 p. m., at the Grayling Sports-mens Hall. Attendance of Scouts at the first meeting of the year held last Tuesday was rather disappointing, but it was thought
that with meetings again on a regular weekly basis attendance would pick up near to last year which was over 60 Boy Scouts at each troop meeting.

With the moving of Rev. John Enselmann from Grayling, the two Scout leaders are badly in need of some adult aid in handling the weekly sessions. They hope that some fathers of Scouts will attend the Tuesday get togethers to give them a hand.

We try to serve you well, and then We hope that you'll be back again!

The Special Session . . .

Michigan's Governor G. Mennen Williams has announced that he will call the State Legislature into a special session about the middle of next month for legislation to curb the ever mounting traffic toll. Michigan State Police say that the death toll on Michigan highways is up about eleven percent during the first seven months of 1955 in comparison to the first seven months of 1954.

These ominous figures certainly deserve the most serious consideration of our law makers. We hope the Legislature and the Governor see 'eye to eye' on this problem and it's solution and not spend several weeks debating with no concrete progress towards an answer.

We humbly offer our ideas on this problem for what the Governor or the Legislature might want to make of them. We are not a traffic expert by any stretch of the imagination but, it seems that this problem can be attacked from four different directions.

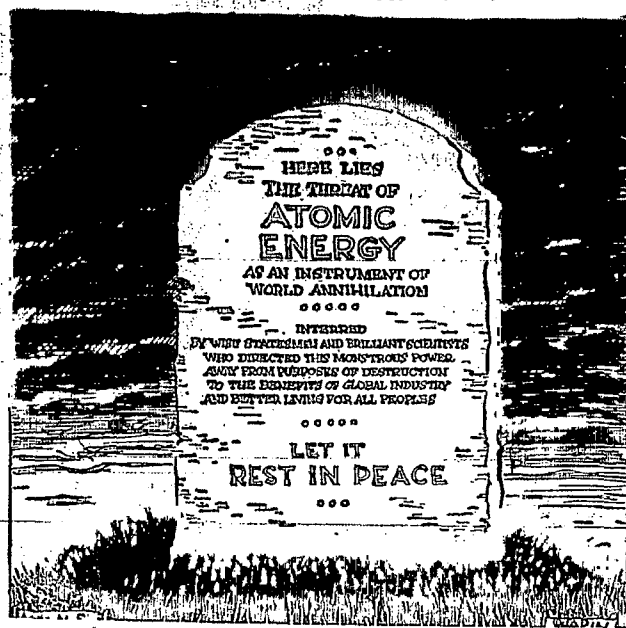

First, tighten the restrictions on the issuing of driver's licenses. Be sure the issuing agent knows his business and sees that every license issued goes to a person who is going to know the rules, is emotionally stable and will not by any means be a menace on the highways.

Secondly, making moving traffic violations such as passing on a curve or hill or going through a stop sign light a mandatory five day county jail sentence plus fine. Have law enforcement men on a state, county and city level adopted a much more "get tough" policy on traffic violations.

Third, set a state speed regulation. This may vary from daytime to night-time and most assuredly should be to the type of highway. Four-lane trunklines could have a much higher speed rate than rural two-lane gravel or blacktop roads. Legislators could use detailed information on this problem from the Highway Department and the State Police.

Fourthly, give Michigan as fast as possible some highways that will carry this terrific increase in traffic. Violations and accidents may, of course, be expected when the traffic of 1950's moves on highways constructed for the peak levels of the 1930's and sometimes 1920's.

EPITAPH, 2055 A. D.

Movements are on foot for more and better highways for the State and, we predict, that they will noticeable cut into the traffic accident percentages. In the meantime, slow down that traffic with tougher violation laws, a speed law and eliminate from our public highways drivers who are accident-prone and stop the issuing operators licenses to every Joe and Moe who puts up the money. R. W. S.

Taking One Consideration With Another—

An agent's life is a happy one. To misquote Gilbert and Sullivan's famous song about policemen.

It is a happy one because he is often able to render help and service to other members of his community — when help is most needed.

Accidents will happen — mishaps will occur. As experienced insurance men we know the many losses you may face — and just as many ways of protecting you against them.

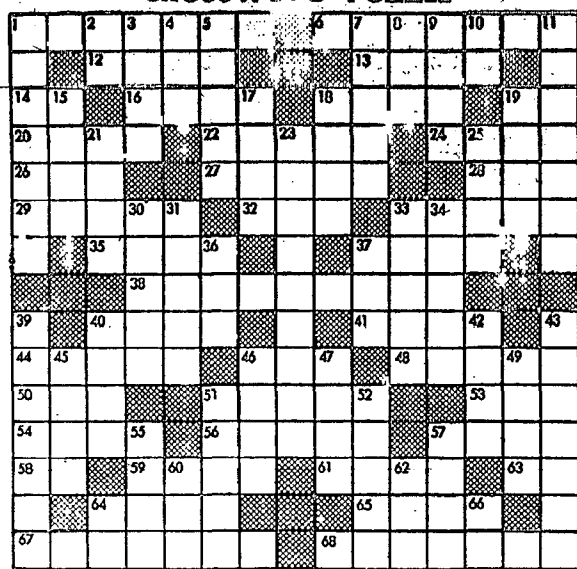

Let us review your insurance coverage. We can show you the best way to soften the blow — if trouble comes your way.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

While in the session of Congress just ended the multi-billion dollar new highway program failed of passage, and as a result, many metropolitan papers are making a great hue and cry over this fact, the debate on the matter presented some interesting sidelights.

First of all, the question of raising money. Major-Oil was all for it, Big Cement was all for it, the debate on the tax proposed for passage of such a measure, and so were other big operations, except C. W. Harper, who didn't feel they should be required to pay for any of the cost. Some Washington observers commented that these people performed a gymnastic miracle, i. e. they could loudly clap their hands applauding the idea, while still keeping their hands in their pockets.

For example, one of the sources of revenue proposed was to impose new taxes on the small firms who recap tires and on garages and service stations that sell recapped tires, about only segment of vast rubber industry left open to small operator.

One of the proposals was to place a tax on camelback, which is the trade name for rubber used in recapping tires, of 15 cents per pound.

Of course, customers of tire re-cappers would pay for tax in higher prices.

But the bill would have provided that the recapper would have to pay this tax on the raw material as he bought it. Thus, 15% of his working capital would immediately be tied up in a fund to pay taxes as well as 15% of the inventory capital of all retailers handling recapped tires.

Next weeks schedules are on the board.
